

THE DAILY PRESS
OFFICE--PRESS BUILDING
NO. 109
JEFFERSON STREET,
LOUISVILLE:
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1865.

News of the Day.

Biterness of feeling between the Mormons and the United States troops continues to increase, and there are prospects of a collision before the winter is over.

Ex-Archbishop-General Blair, of Mr. Buchanan's cabinet, has formed a law partnership in Washington with Mr. Lamont, formerly law partner with Mr. Lincoln.

A delegation from the Cherokees, Seminole, and Creeks, is en route for Washington to present memorial petitions relative to cession of lands and confederation of the Indian tribes.

Five men, occupying the same room in a hotel in Chicago, were suffocated on Saturday night by the escape of gas. A sixth also inhaled the gas, but, although insensible, has not yet died.

There is said to be no truth in the report that the Southern members of Congress had resolved to go to the homes and estates of their opponents upon their return. They will doubtless return next month to prosecute their claims for seats.

A. N. Orleans correspondent says: "Poor old General Scott has left us in a big disaster. Five years ago the General spent several weeks here in a style of unbounded joy and luxury, the honored guest of some of our wealthiest and most hospitable citizens."

The Detroit Free Press publishes a list of the 421 disasters to shipping for the past year, and has incomplete memoranda of between 60 and 70 more, making a total of over 500 in all. The total number of disasters in 1865 was 377; in 1864, 275; in 1863, 380, and in 1862, 379.

There is much ill-feeling between the Mormons and the United States troops stationed in Utah, and apprehensions are entertained that trouble will occur before the close of the winter. Some army officers are endeavoring to induce the President to remove our military force against the Mormons.

Jonathan Green, of the 120th Illinois infantry, was murdered in St. Louis on the night of the 21st, by some person as yet unknown. His skull was broken by a long, sharp instrument like a sword. Green had been sentenced to the Missouri State penitentiary by a court-martial, but having been sent pardoned by the President, was on his way to Springfield, Illinois.

The relation of the parties engaged in the Brooklyn tragedy is stated to have been merely that of friends, though the young man Russ seemed determined that Miss Dayton should become his wife, and on her declining to do so he attempted her life and his own. Both of them are now recovering from their wounds.

The Montreal Witness of Friday says the intelligence had been received by Mr. Devlin, counsel for the prisoner, that the Court of Appeals at Quebec had refused to grant the application of Wayne W. Blossom to be admitted to bail. This settles a long vexatious question, which arose out of the alleged assault on the President, and has been referred back during several months, after a jury had failed to convict him on trial.

In Springfield, Ill., on the 25th, a party of 40 or 50 soldiers, belonging to the 3d Regiment of U. S. Veteran Volunteers, being inflamed with liquor, broke open the cala-house, and released one of their comrades who had been confined there. Subsequently they created a riot with citizens, in which bricks were thrown in profusion, and about forty shots were fired. The ringleader of the soldiers, named Charles Perkins, was killed, and several persons sustained more or less injury. On the same day a gang of Copperheads attacked a barber-shop kept by a colored man, and did considerable damage.

FREEDMEN LABOR.

The other day in Brooklyn, New York, a Mr. Allison, lately a Colonel in the rebel army, speaking in behalf of the suffering poor in the South, remarked that he had divided his large plantation into farms of fifty acres each, with a house and a black family on each farm. They gave him one-third of the product of the land, and kept the residue, and he had reason to believe that he would make more money in this way than he had ever done before.

It gives one peculiar pleasure to record such instances of wise generosity as that of Mr. Allison, for it is certain that if his admirable example were generally followed throughout the South, the question of restitution would speedily cease to be a problem, and insurrection rumors would cease to be fabricated; the South would flourish and all mischief makers would retire to their dens and die of envy and despair.

Mr. Allison has made a direct appeal to the best and noblest feelings of his tenants, and we doubt not that they will respond gratefully and industriously so as to put money into their landlords' purse while they make comfortable living for themselves. If such a noble spirit were more generally exhibited in the South, we would hear less of the cry that the negro will not work.

We have no faith in the statement that the negro will not work. Such an assertion is at variance not only with the past history of the race in this country, but with the principles which govern human nature.

Human action is controlled altogether by motives. While the negro was a slave he worked because he knew that a refusal to do so would ensure punishment. Then he was impelled not by a sense of duty, but by his fears. Now, that he is free, he will receive the reward of his toil for the benefit of himself and those around him, and in this course he is controlled by his hopes.

This is the great difference between free and slave labor. If the freedmen refuse to work it is because they do not receive the terms and treatment which other laborers would demand. In that case the fault is not with them, but with their employers. What is wanted is confidence between the employer and the laborer. That this should be wanting upon the part of the freedmen toward their late masters is perfectly natural.

It should be the aim of the latter, as it is to their interest, to act in such a manner as to restore confidence and disabuse the mind of the negro of all suspicions.

On our outside page will be found an address to the Freedmen of this State by General Fisk, Commissioner of Freed-men's Bureau for Kentucky and Tennessee. The General is here now for the purpose of thoroughly organizing the Bureau in this State. What he says in his address, will meet the approval of all good citizens, and he will be received and greeted by those whom he addresses.

John M. Booth and the Test Oath.

Col. Forney, in a letter from Washington to the Philadelphia Press, dated December 21, adduces the following fresh evidence of the unswerving quality of the Unionism of John M. Booth:

John M. Booth of Virginia visited the Capitol this morning, and looked as hale and as happy as when, more than twenty years ago, he was the subject of a popular John Tyler. Whatever may be said of this remarkable man, no body doubts that his course was as fearless and loyal to the National Government as that of any of the early Southern opponents of the rebellion.

John M. Booth imbibed hatred of the rebellion from his early years, and he was the author of the insurrection from his opposition to the Southern Democratic leaders. He was therefore, natural for him, as an old Whig, to take issue with the so-called Democrats who had so long ruled the roost in Virginia.

During four years of war his plantation has been ravaged by the contending hosts, and he said this morning that he would rather than go through the same rough and wearisome, natural for him, as an old Whig, to take issue with the so-called Demo-
Virginia.

Just now the hated obstacle in the way of this class is the test oath. In support of this essential protection, Booth has made some powerful arguments. His reasoning, derived from his sincere and unflinting loyalty, and his knowledge of the treason of traitors, goes to the very root of the question. He says: "If Congress cannot bind its successors, then we should have laws beyond the period for which Congress was elected, and there would be an absence of all laws."

Some of his points are opportune and powerful, and may well be profitably read by our law-makers and those who expect the oath to be repealed for their special benefit.

In reply to the objection that one Congress cannot bind a succeeding Congress, and that the oath is therefore inoperative upon presents applying for admission to the presidency, he says: "If Congress cannot bind its successors, then we should have laws beyond the period for which Congress
of all laws."

THE KENTUCKY FENIAN--CONVENTION AT Covington--Roberts Indorsed.

The Fenians of Kentucky met in convention at Covington Wednesday, and adopted the following report:

The Fenian Brotherhood of the State of Kentucky, in convention assembled, having carefully and minutely examined into the report of the Executive Committee, and relative to the deposition of John O'Mahony from the Presidency of the Fenian Brotherhood, and of B. D. Killian as Secretary of the same, and after a full, minute and impartial consideration of the entire subject, have, therefore,

Resolved, That while we sadly deplore (in our sorrowful and angry feelings) the action of the Senate taking the only honest and patriotic course, and that we deplore their dictatorial duty to themselves, their constituents and their country, and that we deplore the action of the Senate, we deplore

COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE UNION PRESS.

THURSDAY EVENING, December 28, 1886.

Transacted in the market, in the city of the close of the year being the main cause for the present inaction. There is, however, a supply of goods in the market, though heavy and not so much as the stock on hand for consumption here, as the great bulk of it will be forwarded over the falls to the Southern market. The annual consumption in this city is estimated at about 30,000 for the Gas Works.

Corn, owing to the demand being in excess of supply, is not only fully maintained, but advanced, with a steady demand in the market. A sale of 170 bushels at the wharf, to
